Regarding Tax Sales.

Anumber of protests have been made against the Order-in-Council, recently passed, postponing the granting of title to holders of certificates for lands purchased at the Municipal tax sale in 1920. Ordinarily, these titles would have been available the early part of this month, but the Order has named May 1st as the date. It is probable that the Legislature, at its coming session, may take action in the matter, and postpone the date still further. It was with the idea of protecting the unfortunate farmers in Southern Alberta that the move is said to have been made, and has become applicable to all parts of the Province. The holders of these certificates are in a quandary, having bid on the lands with the distinct understanding that title would issue at the expiration of the twelve-month period.

Death of an Old Resident.

On the 14th inst. the death occurred of Mrs. Adam Baron, an old-timer of Stony Plain District. Deceased was in her fifty-second year, and death resulted from an attack of asthma, from which she had suffered for some time. She leaves a large circle of friends, who mourn the loss of such an estimable lady. The funeral took place on Friday last, which was attended by a large concourse of those who had known her. Services were held in Pastor Eberhardt's Church, after which the remains were interred in the German Lutheran Cemetery.

Another Perplexing Question.

Now that the Irish question is settled and the federal election a thing of the past, we might well turn our immediate attention to the outstanding and annual problem of the week before Christmas—the color of dad's Christmas necktie, says the Edmonton Journal.

The Merchants Bank.

Announcement was made in Montreal Friday last by Sir Montagu Allen, President of the Merchants Bank of Canada as follows: "Some time ago the directors of the Merchants Bank, having reason to fear that the bank's affairs were not in the condition as disclosed to them, came to the conclusion that it was necessary in the bank's interest that a thorough examination of the bank's affairs should be made by a suitable person. They secured the services of H. B. Mackenzie, general manager of the Royal Trust Co., and his reports showed that the bank's rest was seriously impaired. The directors of the Merchants Bank have now obtained from the directors of the Bank of Montreal, subject to the approval of the Governor-in-Council and shareholders of both banks an offer to absorb the Merchants Bank, and in view of the foregoing facts the directors of the Merchants Bank, who control large holdings of the stock, have decided to advise their shareholders to accept the offer."—Edmonton Journal.

Municipal School Districts.

At the Convention of Alberta Municipalities last week a resolution was passed, calling upon the Provincial Government to abolish the office of school trustee and have educational matters administered by municipal school boards instead.

The resolution was a consolidation by the Resolutions Committee of the number of resolutions along the same line as submitted by various locals and the association executive itself, and reads:

"Whereas the present school system is inefficient, and whereas the school taxes bear so heavily on some localities that the education of children is very seriously affected and other school districts are able to operate at a low rate, making the school taxes most inequitable, therefore we strongly urge:

"1st, that the present office of school trustees be abolished;

"That a municipal school board have full charge of education within each municipality;

"3d, that a general levy be struck over all the municipal district sufficient to provide for all operating expenses of the schools therein;

"4th, that a special levy be made in each school district sufficient to meet existing indebtedness, and capital expenditure."

Red Cross Notes

The U.F.A. at Ponoka has offered the Provincial Red Cross headquarters in Calgary a carload of vegetables for distribution in Southern Alberta.

The Altair Hospital has just completed another successful year during which time 90 patients were treated. The annual report shows that 18 maternity cases were treated during the year.

The British Red Cross Society have appointed Sir Benjamin Robertson, the famous Indian famine expert, as an Empire Commissioner in Russia to supervise the distribution of all relief sent to that unfortunate country by the British Empire. Donations may be made through the Canadian Red Cross.

Wide-Bunk Sleighs.

The matter of the wide-bunk sleighs in this province was again to the fore, when a resolution asking for the statutory use of wide-bunk sleighs in this province was before the convention of Alberta Municipalities, held in Edmonton last week. The resolution reads: "Resolved, that the Government of Alberta be asked to introduce legislation at the next session of the Legislature to secure the use of wide bunk sleighs in Alberta, and the prohibition of the sale of all sleighs except such as shall be of the same width as the wheeled vehicles now in use, after October 1st, 1922, provided that such legislation shall not affect the use of any sleighs in use previous to that date."

Eliminating the "Doc."

"There is no such thing as curing a person. Nature alone holds the prerogative to cure.

"We take ourselves too seriously. We think if we have a pain we need skill to cure it. If we used ordinary common sense very few of us would need physicians.

"The person who is enervated, whose emotions are over-worked, loses the power of elimination, and thus the power of resistance of disease and sickness.

"Ten per cent of the surgery of today may be necessary, the rest of it is superfluous.

"The epidemic of grippé three years ago was a disgrace to the medical profession."

These and many other similar statements were the outstanding features of an address delivered before a large audience in the Separation School hall, Edmonton, Wednesday evening by Dr. Tilden, head of the famous health institution in Denver, Colorado, who came to Edmonton to speak on the subject of health after giving a similar lecture last week to a Calgary audience in Knox church, composed mainly of medical men.

Dr. Tilden, at the outset of his lecture, denounced what he called the "mania for surgery" and the mania for medicine and healing that seemed to be sweeping the country.

"This is His Nibs' drawing-room," said Gardiner. "This junk you see about you has been gathered from the corners of the earth during the last few centuries. In there—indicating another room through a door to the left—in his bedroom—a regular museum of stuff running to no end of money. If you want to buy it. He has a couple of pictures worth about a quarter-section of land, and that you see through the door—a prayer rug he calls it, though he don't use it much for that—is worth over five hundred dollars."

Gardiner enjoyed the look of amazement that slowly spread over Riles' face. "He's been over there," said Riles at length, thinking of his own extravagance where he paid ninety cents a yard for a carpet, for the front room at home. "He's been stuffin' you sure. There ain't no maw worth any money like that."

"It's gospel," said Gardiner. "Why, man, he has a set of tools worth more than the best team on your farm, and that statue affair up there—you simply couldn't buy it. The place is just bristling with valuables of one kind and another."

But Riles appeared suddenly agitated. He setted Gardiner by the arm, saying, "If this stuff's worth a maw as you figure, why don't we make a clean-up here, when the duke, or whatever he is, is away? That's be safer, wouldn't it?"

"No, it wouldn't. It'd be easy enough to get away with the stuff, but how'd you turn it into money? The police would get you sure on a game like that. Of course, if you should decide to go in for culture, with the 'agri' added, you might like to have the prayer-mat for your own knees. No, you can't put over anything like that."

And now we better be getting down to business."

Gardiner drew a couple of chairs up to the carved table, opened a drawer, and produced writing materials. "We can't get a letter away to Winnipeg too soon. Nothing like making hay while the sun shines, you know, and if he gets out here before we put our plan up to him, it would be natural enough for him to want to see the mine-owner himself. So hitch your self to that pen there, and let us see what kind of a hand you are at fiction."

Riles would rather have done a day's work in the field than write a letter, but Gardiner insisted it must be done by him. Much of the afternoon was spent in the struggle, and

The Kidneys

The office man and the outdoor worker suffer alike from derangements of the kidneys.

Backaches and headaches are among the symptoms. In some cases Bright's disease soon develops, others suffer from high blood pressure until hardening of the arteries sets in.

In order to forestall painful and fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

Mr. A. D. MacKinnon, Kirkwood, Inverness county, N.S., writes:

"I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to all suffering from weak kidneys. I suffered from kidney disease for a long time. I may also say that for three years I was nearly always troubled with headache, and no treatment seemed to do more than afford temporary relief. I was finally told of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using a few boxes was completely relieved. I have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with the best results, and never fail to recommend these wonderful remedies."

Gardiner's fertile imagination had to be appealed to at several critical points. But at last the letter was completed. It ran as follows:

"John Harris esq
"Stony Plain man

"I take up my pen to let you to let me I am all well hopin this will find you the same well this is a grate country there is a big out or doors well Mr Harris I think I see something here a hole lot better than 3 years on a homestead homestead is all rite for me that Haasut got any money but a man with sun money can do better I wish I had sold my place I left I come or done well here their is lots of chanter to make big money their is a man here owas a cole mine he is what they call Geantrik their is a Hermit and lives in the Hills His mine is worth 500000 but He don't no it He will take 800000 for it and we can sell it rite away for perhaps 500000 I think we should take this up it is a grate chanter if you will sell your place rite away bring all the money you can then I will sell mine for the ballune be sure and bring all the money you can if y you don't like the cole mine there is lots of other chanter they will make you rich and bring the money in bills not cash be chava He won't take chex bechwa He is Geantrik their is a man here sale His friend in new York would pay 500000 for the cole mine if He was here and He is sending Him word so Hurry and let us get holt our farm y you'll sell it to Him and make a killing dont fail

"Your obedunt servant
"Hiram Riles"

Gardiner read the letter carefully, suppressing his amusement over Riles' wrestlings with the language, and finally gave his approval.

"Now, you must make a copy of it," he said. "It's only business to have a copy. That was a fine touch of yours about going back to tell your own farm. I believe you have some imagination after all, if it only had a chance to sprout."

Riles protested about the labour of making a copy, but Gardiner insisted, and at last the work was completed. The sound of a spring boot was heard outside, and a cowboy from a neighbouring ranch called at the door to ask if there was anything wanted from town. "Here's your chance to mail your letter," Gardiner called to Riles with unnecessary loudness. "Mr Riles dropped in here to write a letter," he explained to the rider.

Having with much difficulty folded his epistle until it could be crumpled into an envelope, Riles sealed, stamped and addressed it, and a moment later the dust was rising down the trail as the cowboy bore the fatal misfire to town. The die was cast; the match had been set to the tinder, and the fire must now burn through to a finish, let it scorched whom it would.

Gardiner took up the copy, folded it carefully, and put it into his pocket-book. "Now, Mr. Riles," he said, "we're in for this thing, and there's no backing out. At least you're in for it. You have sent a letter, in your handwriting, such as it is, to Harris, and I have a copy of it, your handwriting, in my pocket. If this thing ever gets out these letter will make good evidence."

CHAPTER XIV.

The Gamblers

Harris found some difficulty in providing that affairs of the farm would proceed satisfactorily during his absence, but at last they were arranged, if not exactly to his liking, at least in a manner that promised no serious loss. It was most unfortunate that Mary, in a moment of headstrong passion quite without precedent in his experience of her, had determined upon a visit just at the time when she was particularly needed at home. If Harris had been quite fair he would have remembered that there had been no time in the last twenty-five years when she had not been needed at home, and the present occasion was perhaps no less opportune for her visit than any other. But he felt a deep grievance over her wife's conduct, and while he indulged her her sympathy he was determined that no act of his should shorten her visit or imply that the business of the farm was in any way suffering from her absence. He had managed their affairs successfully in the past; he would continue to manage them successfully in the future; and he only hoped that time would impress upon her the fact that he was doing everything for the best. He assured himself that he was actuated only by a desire for the highest good for his family, even while their disobedience and ingratitude rendered his task unnecessarily difficult.

The hired man, in consideration of having no field work to do, finally consented to milk the cows and deliver the milk daily to Mrs. Riles, who would convert it into butter—for a consideration of so much per pound. To his good neighbours, the Grants, Harris turned for assistance that should be and Allan be delayed on their trip, or should the harvest come so earlier than expected, simple steps would be taken to garner it.

So, with these arrangements completed, the farmer and his son drove into Plainville one fine bright morning at the end of July, ready for their first long trip into the New West. Indeed, it was Allan's first long journey anywhere; an excursion to Winnipeg at the time of the summer exhibition had been the limit of his experience of travel, and the hard work of the farm had not yet extinguished the young man's desire for novelty and excitement. He looked forward to their expedition with a feeling akin to enthusiasm, and he secretly cherished the hope that their travels might bring them again into the company of his mother and sister, for whom, with the slackening of labour, he now felt an increasing loneliness.

Harris got off at the railway station to buy the tickets; Allan went to the station agent with a feeling of all letters awaiting delivery, and the hired man turned the horses home. Harris's presence at the ticket window through his car report, and remained provokingly unconcerned. Harris's presence at the ticket window. The farmer took no pains to conceal his impatience, coughing and snuffing obviously, but it was not until the last box-car had been duly recorded that the agent began to recognize his existence.

"Nothing for you from—," he said, mentioning the mail order house from which Harris made most of his purchases. "Well, I didn't expect anything," he replied to the farmer, "although you're just as likely to have it when I don't as when I do. How much is a ticket to Calgary?"

"You got the land fever, too?" the agent asked, as he consulted his tariffs. "Riles went up the other day. You'll be making a clean-up on the cheap land, I suppose. But I tell you, Harris, if I'd a farm like yours you couldn't pry me off it with a slouch-bar. No more worries for little Willie, and I'd leave the free land to those that haven't got any—like myself."

"Worry!" snorted Harris. "What do you worry about? You get your say, whether it freezes or hails or shivers up with one of these Dakota scorches."

The agent thought of the piles of reports on his table, but as he thumped the stamp on the tickets he answered, "Oh, I worry over the Monroe doctrine." He left the farmer counting his change, and turned to his reports. "Another money-grubber come crazy with the heat," he muttered. "If I'd his wad would—"

She Thought She Had Heart Trouble, Says This Winnipeg Woman

"I was told no medicine in the world could help me, but Tanlac did what seemed to be impossible, and I am feeling better than I have in many years," said Mrs. Walter J. Crowdera, of 645 Rosedale Ave., Winnipeg, Man. "About a year ago my health broke down completely and I had to take to my bed. I had a regular sleep of it and only after many weeks was I able even to do so much as sit up. Nothing I took gave me any strength and I just wasted away."

"I barely ate enough to keep alive, and what little I did eat caused great distress from acid stomach. Sometimes I felt like I would smother, and my heart would palpitate so I was afraid I had heart trouble. My husband spared no money in providing me with the best of treatments, but nothing benefited me and, as I said, I was told my case was beyond the reach of any medicine."

"Major Park's statement about what Tanlac did for him convinced me there might be a chance for me, so I gave it a trial. It was simply marvelous the way this medicine brought back my health and overcame all my troubles. I feel like a different woman, eat anything without fear of discomfort afterwards and I have gained ten pounds in weight. It is simply wonderful that a medicine could do so much good. My life is no more like what it was than a bright sunny day is like a dark, rainy one. I am a well and happy woman and it's all due to this grand medicine."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Lloyd George Tells Of His Part In The Irish Settlement

London.—Contrasted strikingly with Britain's royal pomp and splendor displayed in the House of Lords, was the scene in the House of Commons a few hours later when, without ceremony, but with evident consciousness of powers and influence, the members heard the Prime Minister render an account of his stewardship and the Government's part in the Irish settlement.

For an hour and three-quarters Mr. Lloyd George spoke to crowded benches and jammed galleries. The only touch of color in the ancient legislative chamber was the brilliant red-coated uniform of Col. Sir Samuel Hoare, who moved the reply to the speech from the throne.

It was not an oration like that of October 31, when the Premier, having been challenged, presented to the country the alternative of war or negotiation with Ireland and won the day by a division overwhelmingly favoring the Government's policy, his role today was one simply marking the problems faced by the delegations with a description of the way they were handled.

Early in his address Mr. Lloyd George silenced those inclined to interrupt him. When an Ulster member interrogated him on "allegiance" Mr. Lloyd George having said that the status of Ireland was that of a free state, with allegiance to the King, he turned and faced the Ulsterist and declared emphatically: "Yes, allegiance to the King and swearing allegiance to the King." He then asked the member to refrain from interruptions, as his task of exposition was difficult and one which he disliked. The Prime Minister was deeply impressive as he came near the end, when in slow tones and solemn manner, he drew a picture of the British Imperial War Cabinet at which a vast chair was waiting for Ireland and looked to the future when Britain's fears would be Ireland's anxieties, and Britain's victory, Ireland's joy.

Suggests Direct

Wireless Service

Plan For Direct Communication Between Britain and Australia Being Investigated

Melbourne.—The Federal Parliament has appointed a committee with authority to investigate and approve a plan for the establishment of direct wireless communication between Great Britain and Australia. Interest in the undertaking has been stimulated by the facility with which Australian stations received President Harding's round-the-world wireless message and by the fact that the press associations received without delay, messages sent from Carnarvon, Wales.

London.—Except when atmospheric conditions are unusually bad, wireless news messages are now being received daily from Australia by way of the post office station at Leaford, the first station of the Imperial wireless chain. The postmaster general points out that the experts who are advising the Government in regard to the construction of additional stations of the Imperial chain express the opinion that greater reliability and cheapness would be ensured by the use of intermediate stations about 2,500 miles apart which would be able to maintain communication when direct service is impossible.

Investigate Condition in West Indies

The coming of the British mission has created considerable interest in view of the frequent discussions about possible sale of the West Indies to the U.S.

Lively Debates In Saskatchewan Legislature

Question of Hon. J. A. Maharg's Resignation is Discussed

Regina.—Correspondence between Hon. J. A. Maharg and Premier Martin in connection with the former's resignation as Minister of Agriculture, was a feature of a session of the Legislature last week. Mr. Maharg based his resignation on the Premier's action in supporting Hon. W. R. Motherwell as Liberal candidate for Regina in the recent federal elections. Mr. Maharg stated that he was promised the sympathy of the different members of the Government in his freedom to support the Progressive party in the federal campaign. Premier Martin denied having promised the support of the Government to the Progressive party. He stated that on several occasions he publicly announced his opinion that the members of the Government should be free to follow their own dictates in federal affairs. Mr. Martin expressed his regret at the resignation of Mr. Maharg, as he had hoped to have his assistance in carrying on the Government of the province in a manner satisfactory to all the people.

Harris Turner strongly advocated the abolition of the party system of Government by the Assembly. He declared emphatically: "The party system was an evil, and resulted in the expenditure of money for party purposes to keep the party alive." Mr. Martin, in reply, stated that the party system had been built up as the result of experience of centuries. It was impossible under British constitutional methods to carry on Government without party lines. He would like to see a good strong opposition. An opposition was a good thing for the Government. The questions of grain marketing, railway rates and other important matters were discussed by the Premier in debate.

At the instance of Geo. Cockburn, Independent, the correspondence in connection with the resignation of Hon. Geo. Langley was laid on the table, the contents of which created a mild sensation.

The House adjourned on Friday for the Christmas holidays, and will reassemble Tuesday, Jan. 10th.

Financial Conference

Would Benefit Europe

Allies and Former Enemy Countries Should Participate

London.—The Daily Chronicle, which is regarded as being especially close to Government sources of information prominently displays a special article concerning the proposed financial conference to follow adjournment of the present conference in Washington. In its editorial columns the newspaper says: "This gives practical shape to the idea of doing for Europe what the Washington conference has done for the Pacific."

Declaring that it is not suggested that the United States should be asked to take the initiative in calling such a conference, it adds: "There is nothing to prevent Great Britain and France from benefitting from the United States' example to call a European conference in which the United States if she cared not to do more, would doubtless be willing to participate in a watching or advisory capacity."

The agenda of such a conference, the Chronicle says, would deal with reparations debts, exchange problems and disarmament. It emphasizes that not only the allies but the former enemy countries and Russia should participate.

Press Asks Assistance

Vienne.—The newspaper publishers' union asserts that Austria will be without daily newspapers soon unless aid is received from the Government. A committee has been appointed to confer with the Government with regard to assistance which probably will take the form of subsidized print paper.

Move To Form A Western Freight Classification Body

Benares Welcomed Prince

In Spite Of Ghazal's Orders For a Boycott

Benares, India.—When the Prince of Wales arrived here a "hartal" had been proclaimed but it was practically ignored by the natives who thronged the streets. The programme of which had been arranged in honor of the Prince was carried out without a hitch and he left for Nepal to hunt big game.

London.—The magnificent reception accorded the Prince of Wales at Benares following the disappointing display at Allahabad, says a Renter's despatch, illustrates the indefiniteness of the Indian unrest. The warm reception at Benares is regarded as of special significance inasmuch as Benares is a holy city. The Hindus turned out in throngs to greet the Prince in disobedience of indirect strike orders from the Hindu leader Ghazal, whom the extremists do not hold up as Mahatma (Saint). After formal reception by the Maharajah, the Prince drove in a glittering silver state coach to the Hindu University, where he received an honorary degree of doctor of literature.

Calgary.—Definite steps toward the formation of a Western Canadian Freight Classification Committee were taken at a conference between W. H. Langlan, general freight manager of the C.P.R., Major W. M. Kirkpatrick, assistant freight agent for western lines of the C.P.R. and members of the classification committee of the Calgary Board of Trade. Mr. Langlan who is on his way to British Columbia from Montreal, outlined what had been accomplished by the classification committee of Eastern Canada toward revising the present classification code. More than half the articles have been classified by the eastern committee so far as the minimum rates and ratings are concerned. The maximum rates in the new classification will be the same as at present, Mr. Langlan declared, except that trade headings will be more restricted.

The suggestion which Mr. Langlan placed before the conference was that the same principles should be followed in the western provinces as in the east, that of appointing a special committee comprising three of the chairmen of the Western Canadian Freight Association. The minutes of the eastern committee would be forwarded to the western committee and if the recommendations did not meet with approval these business men affected by the classification would be called in and in that way straighten out the difficulty.

King George Gives

Speech From Throne

Special Session of Parliament to Consider Irish Question

London.—The special session of Parliament, called to consider the Irish peace settlement was opened by King George. In his speech from the throne he said: "It is my earnest hope that by the articles of agreement now submitted to you, the strife of centuries may be ended."

The text of the King's speech was as follows: "My lords and members of the House of Commons. I have summoned you to meet at this unusual time in order that the articles of agreement which have been signed by my ministers and the Irish delegation can at once be submitted for your approval. No other business will be brought before you at the present session."

"It was with heartfelt joy that I learned of the agreement reached after negotiations protracted many months and affecting not only the welfare of Ireland but of the British and Irish races throughout the world. It is my earnest hope that by the articles of agreement now submitted to you the strife of centuries may be ended and that Ireland as a free partner in the commonwealth of nations forming the British Empire will secure fulfillment of her national ideals."

China Proposes to

Buy Shantung Railway

Japanese Delegates Have Cabled Offer To Tokio

Washington.—The counter proposals of China for the purchase from Japan of the Kiao Chow Tsinan Fu Railroad in Shantung province, has been cabled to Tokio by the Japanese armaments conference delegation which has been carrying on direct conversation with the Chinese delegates in an effort to settle the Shantung problem outside the conference.

The Japanese are said to have consented it necessary to receive instructions from home on this matter which is deemed the most important in the negotiations. China is understood to be ready to furnish bonds as security for the payment, but the Japanese are said to feel that some security further than bonds should be given. The consultation with Tokio may delay definite action on the railroad subject.

By making your purchases from your home merchant you are contributing direct to the prosperity of the community in which you live.

In humble cot and stately hall
With laughter and with song,
The children hail the Christmas tide
For which they've waited long;
To them Old Time had leaden wings
They wished him well away,
And asked that he but leave to them
Their own—their one Great Day.

In their sweet songs and joyous play
The older folks renew
Dear visions of their early days
When life was sweet and true,
And once again their voices raise
In greetings ever new
A merry Christmas to you all,
A bright new year to you!

British Miners

Working Overtime

Greatest Rush of Business Since Pre-War Days

London.—Scottish coal mine owners have a rush of orders at present that has not been equalled since pre-war days. Steamers are loading coal day and night and the miners are working overtime. The situation in South Wales is similar to that at the Scottish mines.

In consequence of the rush of business, coal prices are suffering considerably. The increase is largely due to continental and other foreign orders for coal.

Egg Record

In the egg laying competition which closed at Georgetown, Delaware, Oct. 31, there was a new record established of 341 eggs in 315 days. This was the production of a B. H. Orpington hen, which had been sent over for the competition by Joseph Thomas, of Glasgow, England, but bought later by L. B. Clarke, of Meriden, Conn.

Desert Cactus is Useful

Many Things Are Made From Different Species of Plant
The huge cactus which grows in abundance on desert soil is being turned to useful account today.

The woody part of the trunk supplies material for table-legs, chairs, canes and veneering. The prickly spikes are made into toothpicks, needles, and pins for mending leather. The pulp in the stem is cut into strips, and is stewed or fried for human food. Cheese is made from the fruits of some cactus plants, and the red juice is used to color ice creams and jellies.

There are many different kinds of cactus, some growing to a height of sixty feet. Many of the different species bear fruit which is eaten raw or when dried, and one particular part of the plant is often eaten by natives owing to its peculiar power of allaying both hunger and thirst, and acting as well as a powerful stimulant.

WINTER HARD ON BABY

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, bad ventilated rooms. It is too hot for him. The mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches colds which rack his little system; his stomach and bowels get out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To guard against this the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels and break up colds. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Those Who Dance Must Pay The Fiddler"

There's a settlement in profit or loss, for nearly every indulgence.

Sometimes the pay day is long deferred, and in that case the settlement may bear compound interest.

Often a payment in ill health is required for the dance had with tea or coffee during earlier years. Sometimes the collection comes in sleeplessness, sometimes in headaches, sometimes in high blood pressure, or in nervous indigestion—sometimes in all these penalties.

Nerves won't always stand the whipping of tea and coffee's drug, caffeine.

If you've been dancing to tea or coffee's fiddling, why keep on till payment time comes? If you're beginning to pay, now, why not cancel the contract?

There's an easy and pleasant way to avoid tea and coffee's penalties, as thousands have found who have changed to Postum. It is a delight with any meal—rich, comforting and satisfying—and it never harms. Even the little children can have a breakfast cup of Postum, with no harm for what may happen to sensitive nerves.

Instead of paying penalties for your meal-time drink, let it pay benefits to you, by giving natural health a full chance—and begin the new arrangement today. Any grocer will sell you, or any good restaurant will serve you Postum.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in package) of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared, made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Mother! Move Child's Bowels With California Fig Syrup

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruit" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. Baronet Deprived of Nationality

Sir Edgar Speyer Held Guilty of Giving Aid to King's Enemies

Sir Edgar Speyer has been deprived of his British nationality by a report of a special Statutory Committee, which was appointed recently to inquire into charges that he had been guilty of conduct incompatible with his oath of allegiance to King George V, and giving aid and comfort to the King's enemies. The evidence before the committee was taken in camera. But it is understood great stress was laid by the Attorney-General on testimony procured by a commission in the United States, showing Sir Edgar's relations with Dr. Karmichael, and other Germans in the United States during the war. This decision automatically deprives Sir Edgar of his British Privy Councilship, but he retains his baronetcy until King George, by order-in-council, annuls it. He has the right to appeal to the Supreme Court on questions of law, if he elects to do so.

A Coat Dress In Black Broadcloth

By Marie Belmont

Black has held full sway for so many months that one would think its power must surely begin to wane. But this is by no means the case, as black things continue to come from Paris. To be sure, at present there are enough high shades to offset this sombre tone. By way of diversion, the vogue for black is finding new mediums of expression. This particular coat dress is broadcloth instead of Canton crepe, and drapes up at the hip as effectively as any broadcloth can. The self-covered buckle holds the fulness there, while black silk braid outlines the collar and slightly flared sleeves. A dainty vest in white or ecru complete the effect. The coat dress is sponsored by a number of designers this season and finds ready favor because of its smartness and practicability. It may be worn beneath a long or short coat, and is very good with a short fur coat.
